

Veslovsky - Stiva's friend, hits Kitty (maybe), Levin is hostile but well-behaved, embody selfishness and jealousy, brings out something in Kitty (flattered) newshoer to show him

Levin talks idly but doesn't live them, Stiva says complicated life, even in perfect marriage → not perfect

Is Levin 100% committed to Kitty? No, visits Anna

"selfishness is good" we mean egoism that is ugly and excessive, Tolstoy means self-interest marriage is mostly selfish (85%), 15% sacrifice p436 marriage not as expected, but has surprising good things (unsure how to weigh) p437-8: positive ending p439: honeymoon, ends happy, but starts off very negative

no idea of status of marriage, don't find out for sure until last page

Levin gets depressed towards end of book how to incorporate others if fighting for selfishness, limit of being rude/ignore others, CANNOT adultery hurting people's feelings is fine to an extent

Anna's adultery rules for divorce is murky forgive

greedy - wants everything

Karenin's (Christian) sacrifice - slips away (is it real)

Anna hates K. too much

SELFISH

Why stuck?
2 notes 1st note scandal, get a position (1st Anna must his career finished)

→ Betsey & others hostile to see him (laughing @ him)

Cares about propriety, can't keep it up all the time

what does Tolstoy think about Society as a whole?

(Self) vs. society

Doesn't like it, Levin tries to get away

Levin @ Moscow, club, goes into stupor, zombie, loses his soul tries to be 'alone' from the world groups: high society dislikes alien left peasants & family - couple peasants - moving scene universities → hot air, distracted from real questions

Scientific societies → pretentious, hot air political parties

govt offices -

large corporations
